

Moving Past European Images of Knowledge

Alexandra Hofmänner

Science & Technology Studies Elsewhere

In April 2017, scientists took to the streets in a historically unprecedented Global March for Science. The event was seen as symbolic of a crisis in the relationship of science and society. This book considers the Global March for Science from a post-colonial perspective to inquire into the toolkit that the academic field of Science & Technology Studies (STS) has to offer. It argues that new concepts and analytical approaches are necessary to investigate current global dynamics in science, technology and society, so as to deliver insights that the recent expansion of STS scholars beyond Western Europe and North America alone is unlikely to provide. The book presents a Programme in Science Studies Elsewhere (SSE) to demonstrate the urgent need to carry postcolonial issues right into the centre of STS's intellectual programme.

Science & Technology Studies
History of Science
Sociology of Science

Alexandra Hofmänner is assistant professor in Science & Technology Studies (STS) at the University of Basel, Switzerland. She received a PhD at the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology (ETH Zürich) and has carried out extensive research in Switzerland and South Africa.

Alexandra Hofmänner
Science & Technology Studies Elsewhere

A Postcolonial Programme.

Approx. 320 pages, 15 illustrations, hardcover

Approx. CHF 59.– / EUR (D) 59.–

ISBN 978-3-7574-0034-7

Publication date: March 2020

Schwabe Berlin

Available as e-book

_____ cps. Science & Technology Studies Elsewhere. A Postcolonial Programme

2020. Approx. 320 pages, 15 illustrations, hardcover

Approx. CHF 59.– / EUR (D) 59.–

ISBN 978-3-7574-0034-7

plus postage and delivery costs

Name _____

Institution _____

Address/ZIP-Code/City _____

E-mail _____

Date / Signature _____

Switzerland:

Schwabe Verlag

Steinentorstrasse 11

CH-4010 Basel

Phone +41 61 278 95 65

info@schwabeverlag.ch

Germany, Austria and other countries:

Stuttgarter Verlagskontor SVK GmbH

Rotebühlstrasse 77

Postfach 10 60 16

DE-70049 Stuttgart

Fax +49 (0)711 6672-1974

svk@svk.de